

How can Right Be Wrong

Tekst og musik Jette Torp

The thrill in your voice and your blue eyes too
I gazed at the changes that came over you
The light blushing cheeks when you called out her name
And your foolishness when she finally called

It took quite some time till you knew it yourself
You clung to your joy not understanding too well
But desperately hoping when you turned on the lights
That everything was just like before

But you will grow tall and you will grow strong
And some day tell everybody what is goin' on
Even if it hurts cause you know this strong feeling
It cannot be put away

And you will feel free you won't have to fight
And some day tell everybody 'bout that first night
Even if it hurts - even if it hurts

The rules you grew up with might need to be changed
The dreams you were dreaming they got rearranged
But you've looked for the true love you've searched for so long
And now when you've found it they tell you it is wrong

Well but how can a thing that's so right be wrong
Sometimes even nature turns things upside down
Yes even the rivers make trips to the sea
And on mountain tops wild flowers grow

But you will grow tall and you will grow strong.
